Powerhouse Ultimo Revitalisation

Construction partner announced and Mod 1 lodged

The NSW Government has appointed Richard Crookes Constructions to deliver the main works for the $300 million revitalisation of Powerhouse Ultimo.

Richard Crookes Constructions brings a wealth of experience delivering heritage and cultural infrastructure, including the Naala Badu expansion of the Art Gallery of NSW and Walsh Bay Arts Precinct revitalisation.

Planning update

Throughout the tender process, all 3 contractors advised that parts of the Wran and Galleria building will need to be disassembled and replaced to ensure the safety of construction workers and ongoing structural building integrity.

To this note, we have prepared a modification to the State Significant Development Application (SSDA) detailing this new approach alongside other proposed design amendments. Details will be available on the planning portal.

What's happening?

- Works to prepare the site are ongoing

- Modification to the development approval will be on exhibition next week
- Infrastructure NSW and Richard Crooks Construction are working closely to finalise the detailed construction program.

The revitalised museum will include:

- New and enhanced exhibition spaces
- Revitalised heritage buildings
- New public domain, including a public square along The Goods Line
- A reoriented, more accessible visitor experience.

Once main works construction starts, it is expected to take approximately 3 years to complete the project.
